The attestations commence "Ipse Rex subscripsit," followed by "Eustachius filius ejus subscripsit," and "Matildis Regina subscripsit." All these have crosses (each of which has its own distinctive form and character) placed above the names, doubtless by the royal personages themselves, whose skill in writing, perhaps, permitted no higher effort; or the sign of the cross, as a sacred symbol, might be taken to give paramount force to the act of witnessing.

Amongst the Prelates whose names appear as witnesses, with crosses attached, are William [Corbois] Abp. of Canterbury; Thurstan, Abp. of York; Alexander, Bp. of Lincoln, Lord Chancellor; Henry de Blois, Cardinal, Bp. of Winchester, brother to King Stephen; John, Bp. of Rochester, Archdn. of Canterbury; Everard, Bp. of Norwich, Archdn. of Salisbury; Simon, Bp. of Winchester, Chancellor to Queen Adeliza. There is no writing, properly so called, known of any English Sovereign prior to Richard II, and no signature or name fully expressed, before Henry II, though examples are to be found amongst the Cotton MSS. of the initials of Richard II. and Henry IV and V.

882 POLE (CARDINAL) Abp. CRANMER and others, an interesting series of Documents, viz.:—

I. Abp. CRANMER to Thomas Bede, late a monk, of Battle Abbey, Dispensation from monastic vows, with license to secularise and hold a benefice with cure of souls, dated Lambeth, 12 Jan. 1538. Also Letters Patent of Confirmation under the Great Seal of Henry VIII., dated Westminster, 12 Jan. 1538

II. Letters patent, under the Great Seal of Henry VIII., granting a pension of 10 marks per annum to Thomas Bede, late a monk of the dissolved Abbey of Battle, dated Westminster, 6 July, 1538.

III. Cardinal POLE to Thomas Twysden, Deacon in the Diocese of Canterbury, and formerly a professed Regular of the order of St. Benedict, a Dispensation and License to act as Exeeutor to the will of his deceased brother William Twysden, in conjunction with Elizabeth, widow and executrix of the said William, dated, Lambeth, 12 July, 1556, sealed with the Cardinal's beautiful seal of Office

IV. Cardinal POLE to his Vicar-General, David Poole, Letters with grant of Pardon to Thomas Twysden, alias Bede, late a monk of Battle Abbey, now dissolved; and, on his own recantation and petition, absolving him from the sin of secularising and obtaining goods and lands, and licensing him to execute the office of Deacon, to remain a ssecular, and to hold a benefice until the regular places are restored; also to retain his property on condition of his bequeathing it to the said monastery, or to religious uses (which he never did), dated Greenwich, XII. Kalends of March (18 Feb.) 1556-7, the EXCESSIVELY RARE AUTOGRAPH and privy seal of Cardinal Pole attached

V. David Pole, Vicar-General, to Thomas Twysden, alias Bede, a professed of the Order of St. Benedict, and a Deacon in the Diocese of Canterbury, Warrant, with Pardon, etc. in execution of the preceding Privy Seal, sealed with the Cardinal's beautiful seal of office

VI. The Nuncupative Will of Thomas Twysden of Wye, with probate. The will is not dated; the probate is dated 11 April, 1584. He appoints his nephew, Roger Twysden, his executor and administrator of all his goods. He bequeaths nothing to the church.

Thomas Twysden, above named, was a monk of Battle Abbey, under the monastic name of Bede. He was one of the ancestors of Sir Roger Twysden, the antiquary. At the dissolution of the monasteries he secularised, and had a pension from the Crown. On Mary's accession to the throne he recanted, and obtained his pardon from the Legate Cardinal Pole, and was allowed to retain his secular state, also the property he had then acquired, on condition of bequeathing the latter to the Church.

The documents form a complete series, evidencing the course pursued on the ejection of the monks, and the efforts of Mary and the Legate to recover the lost property of the Church, and to recal the dispersed monks then living on their pensions and such benefices and property as they had been able to acquire. It is doubted if such another complete series is anywhere to be found.

883 ADDISON (JOSEPH) AUTOGRAPH NOTE-BOOK, consisting of some portions of Essays contributed to the SPECTATOR, viz. I. Of Imagination; II. Of Jealousie; III. Of Fame 8vo.

The written part of this volume consists of 35 leaves (the rest being blank) and of these some 31 are written in a clear and print-like hand on one side of the leaf only. This would seem to consist of the ESSAYS in their first state, passages having been added by the author in his ordinary current hand, and probably after the lapse of many years, on the blank pages facing the divisions of the original text with which they are connected. Some leaves at the commencement have been torn out, consequently the opening paragraphs of the Essay on Imagination are missing.

The authenticity of this Manuscript was much canvassed in the public journals at the time of its discovery by the present owner (see especially Athenæum, Nos. 1923 and 1934) but the result seems to have been in the universal concurrence of those competent to form an opinion on the subject, that the volume is without doubt the genuine autograph Note-book of Joseph Addison. An extract from a letter of of Sir Frederic Madden to the owner (Athenæum, No. 1934) expresses an opinion most favourable to the genuinness of the MS. and calls attention to the circumstance that it is written on paper corresponding in watermark and other characteristics to that used in official books of the period, 1700 and 1712; and it is suggested that the bulk of the MS. may have been first penned about the time Addison accepted the office of Commissioner of Appeals, in 1704. Every one is familiar with the poems of Burns written in like manner on the paper bearing the stamp of his office

884 Cobbett (William) A portion of his ENGLISH GRAMMAR, being pages 1 to 24 of the autograph MS. for the printer. A remarkable example of clearness of composition and exactness of expression, though not without some slips of the pen, e.g. were for where, etc.

885 The Art of Architecture, a Poem, in imitation of Horace's Art of Poetry 4to. for R. Dodsley, 1742

At the end of this printed tract is some writing, with signature of the celebrated PEG WOFFINGTON, whose illiteracy is well known, and whose autograph, consequently, is of the utmost rarity.

900 Chansons Françaises (Recueil de), 10 vols. calf gilt, bound by De Rome large 4to. Sæc. XVIII.

A matchless collection of historical, satirical, and amourous Chansons from the time of Henry IV. King of France (1600) to Louis XV., accompanied with explanations, anecdotes and dates, the last date being 1737 (Vol. ix.) There is an Index to each volume. It is believed to be the most ample and interesting collection of its class anywhere to be found. It is, in fact, a complete anecdotical and poetical history of France, and even of England, where English history intermingles with that of France, during a century and a half. The most scandalous anecdotes are openly related in these Poems, which include even large compositions of much interest, for instance the Procès of Fouquet, and a Play (Vol. viii.) in 45 pages, setting forth the incestuous life of the famous Regent d'Orleans, continued even aux enfers. William III., Pascal, Lafontaine, Racine, Louis XIV. are also referred to, and many other famous men and women both of England and France find here a satirical, and often, doubtless, a truthful portraiture.

936 Leo X. Bilanci e Conti ed altre Partite attenenti à Leone X. ed. all' Arcivèscovo di Firenze, a tempo di Giulio de' Medici, 1517-18. Twenty-one original and most important Documents, on paper, with Official Signatures folio, Sæc. XVI.

These important documents, totally unknown to Mr. Roscoe, and all the other biographers of Leo. X, throw much light, not only on whence the Papal Revenues were derived, but also on the venality of the Court of Rome, for we here discover that the Pope's own Physician, Ferrando de Aragona, had to pay for his place "Ufitio d'Abbreviatoria de Minori," 2250 ducats, and Baldassare de Pescia 6000 ducats for a "Segretariato." In fact, the gratuities given for various offices are truly curious. Amongst the payments are 2000 ducati d'oro on account of 4000 to Cardinal Campeggio for his Legation to England; 256 ducati to Frate Nicolo de la Magna for his journey to England; 300 ducati to the famous poet Giovanni Rucellai for his yearly salary; and various sums to the Strozzi, Fuggers, and other historical names. Three of the most important entries occur in March 1518, recorded thus:—"Pagati a Raffael da Urbino per Azzuri per la Loggia, Ducati 100."—"Pagati al detto per conto del Opere di detto Lavoro, Ducati 32."—"Pagati a Raffael d'Urbino per l'Opere della Loggia, Ducati 32;" shewing that the immortal Artist received from the Pope, deemed a magnificent Patron of Art, the paltry sum of 164 ducats only for his adornment of the Vatican Loggia of world wide fame; whilst in the same document we find recorded as gifts, "100 ducati par dar la manacia di Cantori per la festa della incoronatione," and 100 ducats as a reward to the courier, and 150 ducats to the Frenchman who brought the news from France of the birth of the king's son. Amongst the liabilities is the sum of 3000 Ducats payable to Andrea Petrini if His Holiness failed to bestow upon him the first vacant Scretaryship. The prices paid for Perle, Bocali d'Oro, Smeraldi, Taffetà, Velluto, etc. etc. are all recorded in these important papers, which, to a biographer wishing to enter more deeply into the private life of Leo X, would prove almost invaluable.
